Nuts and Bolts of the Nomination

- Nominee eligibility
- Nominator eligibility
 - Role of Nominator
- References
- Adherence to space limitations

Role of the Nominator

- Review list of past recipients/entities to get a sense of the benchmark for the quality of the contributions that have been recognized
- Ensure that the contributions of your nominee/entity satisfy the description of the award
- Selecting and following up with References – This is very important!

Content of the write up

- Specific, meaningful descriptions of the contributions
- A citation that is brief and highlights the specific contributions
- Strong references that provide a distinct and personal perspective on the impact of the contributions

Review process

- The ARC typically holds a preparatory teleconference prior to the close of nominations to acquaint everyone with the awards program.
- Each member of the ARC independently reviews the nominations under the various award categories and provides a numerical score that can range from 1.00 – 5.00, with 5.00 reflecting that the nominee is highly qualified, and 3.00 indicating that the nominee is qualified. In addition members provide specific comments on the nominations
- The information from the independent reviews is organized by EAB Staff for discussion during the face to face meeting of the ARC which is held in June
- Following this meeting ARC prepares a set of recommendations for the selected recipients and presents them to the EAB for review and approval in Executive Session.
- Once EAB approves the ARC recommendations, nominees and nominators are informed as appropriate of the outcomes.
