IEEE Honors Ceremony Gala, Saturday, 23 August 2014

The IEEE Honors Ceremony Gala, a prestigious event during Sections Congress, is a recognition and celebration of global technical and professional leaders who have made, and continue to make, outstanding breakthroughs and major advances in IEEE's technical fields. You may recognize some of IEEE's most illustrious past honorees, including Irwin Mark Jacobs, Co-Founder of Qualcomm; John L. Hennessy, President of Stanford University; Ray Dolby, Founder, Dolby Labs.; Amar Bose, Founder of Bose Corp.; Morris Chang, Founder of Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company; Gordon Moore, Co-Founder of Intel; Tim Berners-Lee, Founder of the World Wide Web.

Sponsors of IEEE Sections Congress may choose to designate their contribution to the IEEE Honors Ceremony.

The IEEE Honors Ceremony recognizes achievement in several key technical and professional areas, including but not limited to: biomedical engineering technology, communications, computer-related technology, control and information devices, education, environmental and safety technology, healthcare technology, materials, microelectronics, photonics, power engineering, robotics, signal processing, sustainability, and transportation technology.

Your support of the IEEE Honors Ceremony Gala will further recognize these leaders and visionaries and inspire the next generation of technologists to create intelligent solutions for tomorrow. Sponsorship of the IEEE Honors Ceremony Gala will deepen your sense of pride and appreciation for the advancements available today and for the honorees whose work has benefited us all.
